Three earlier editions are known; one in 1616, which survives in a copy in the Bodleian, one in 1618, of which there is a copy in the U.L.C., and one in 1620 (Britwell-Huntington, and an imperfect copy in the Harmsworth collection). The copy of the 1620 edition cited by Lowndes as sold at Wellington Street in 1856 is presumably the Britwell copy, and no copy of any edition, apart from those mentioned above, appears to be known.

The poem (which consists of one four-line and 75 six-line stanzas) was attributed to Andrewes in the Britwell sale catalogue of March, 1923, but this attribution is not adopted by the S. T. C.

 APPARENTLY UNRECORDED. The petition was printed for circulation to the members of the Privy Council and has no title, beginning on A 2 with the heading "To the Right Honovrable, the Lords and others of his Majesties most Honourable privie Councell." It recounts the hardships and indignities suffered by the petitioner in Bermuda and his grievances and claims against the Summer Islands Company. After his claim for arrears of salary for 1623 and 1624, he has added with a pen "1625, 1626, 1627" and against a mention of his wife "brought her to such want and grieffe, as is like to cost her her life," he has written in the margin "now she is at rest with God."

TO THE RIGHT HONOURABLE; THE

Lords and others of his Majesty's most Honourable private Councell.

Right Honourable;

IT is well scene, that all such in this Land, as feare not Gods Iudgements, are loath to be judged by your Honours : It is also very apparent, that were it not but for your Honours, there would bee no end of oppression and wrong, nor any living in this Land, neither for Poore nor Rich; and that therefore, all the Kings louing and true hearted Subjects, both high and lowe, haue cause continually to pray for your Honours, next to our gracious King and his Royall Issue.

Giue me (your poore Suppliant) leaue to declare the wrongs vnder which I haue a long time groaned; hauing spent many yeares in the seruice of the Summer Islands Company in much misery

"These meanes will make starke Cowards of vs all."
The next 17 pages contain the account of the fight and on the last page is the casualty list in smaller type.

 POPE'S FIRST SEPARATE PUBLICATION. The priority of the two issues of this book has not yet been decided. The Grolier Catalogue places this issue (with Lewis's name alone in the imprint) as the earlier, and Sir Edmund Gosse, who had copies of both, held the same view. In the Ashley Catalogue the order is reversed without reason given, and Mr. Griffith in his Bibliography after weighing all the evidence also adopts this order, saying "I have altered the accepted sequence with diffidence and after much hesitation." The collation is A-E in fours, enclosed in a half-sheet of which the first leaf bears the half-title and the second a list of books sold by W. Lewis. This half-sheet is found with both issues.  OF THIS EXCEEDINGLY RARE POEM ONLY FOUR OTHER COPIES APPEAR TO BE KNOWN; OF THESE THREE ARE IN PUBLIC LIBRARIES (British Museum, Cosin Library, Durham, and Huntington) and the fourth, formerly in the Leconfield library, was sold in these rooms in April, 1928, for £6,500. A reproduction of the title-page appears in the catalogue of that sale (facing p. 54): the recto of the preceding leaf (A 1), containing a bold woodcut of a ship, is reproduced here.

In his preface Rich explains that "Newes from Virginia," like "The Admirable Bashville," was written in verse to save time—he feared being forestalled by English journalists. "I did feare preuention by some of your writers, if they should have gotten but some part of the newes by the tayle." Both in the preface and the poem, he writes as a citizen of the new world: "I must not loose my patrymonie; I am for Virginia againe," and Let England knowe our willingnesse, for that our worke is good,

Wee hope to plant a Nation,
where none before hath stood.

In the first half of the poem he describes the shipwreck and adventures in Bermuda:

And then on shoare the Iland came Inhabited by Hogges
Some Foule and Tortoyes there were they onely had one Dogge . . .
A thousand hogges that dogge did kill
their hunger to sustaine,

and in the latter part after recounting events in Virginia he goes on to praise its fertility and speak hopefully of its prospects. This is his account of the freight of the two ships sent home by Lord Delaware :

in the same
Two ships, are these commodities :
Furres, Sturgeon, Caiiare,
Blacke-walnut-tree, and some deale-boards,
With such they laden are :
Some Pearle, some Wainscot and clapboards with some Sassafras wood.

The connection between this and other accounts of the shipwreck of the Sea Venture at the Bermudas and Shakespeare's "Tempest" is well-established; for another account (no doubt one of those competitive efforts which Rich feared) see lot 14, "A Plaine Description of the Barmudas."
